

Course Title	Preparation of Publications I
Course Code	PAR 221
Course Type	Compulsory
Level	Doctorate (PhD)
Year / Semester	3 rd / 6 th
Teacher's Name	Professors of PhD program
ECTS	15	Lectures/week	-	labs / week	-
Course Purpose	Opportunity to study postgraduate subjects related to architecture. This lesson is usually conducted in case of individual study (under the supervision of a counsellor-teacher) on issues of common interest between the student and the teacher. The ultimate goal is to publish this small research work according to the rules governing publications. Student research work must be published in at least one international conference or magazine. The student meets this requirement either by publishing the document or by communicating acceptance.
Learning Outcomes	The expected learning outcomes are the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The cultivation in the doctoral researcher of the background knowledge, the necessary research experience, ethics and skills to become a doctoral graduate, useful and beneficial to society.</li> <li>• The production of new knowledge with systematic research engagement in the focused interests of the program and the cultivation of research orientations in architectural practice. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The promotion of research as an important tool in the service of architectural science, for the promotion of architectural practice as art and science.</li> </ul> </li> </ul>
Prerequisites	PAR 211 Doctorate thesis research I	Co-requisites	-
Course Content	Survey of postgraduate subjects related to the student's research goals.

	Preparation of a publication (under the supervision of a consultant-professor) on the chosen research topic.
Teaching Methodology	The lesson is conducted through meetings and co-ordination with lecturers. The aim of the course is for students to prepare the corresponding text for publication.
Bibliography	Similar to the student's research theme.
Assessment	Accept and publish research (100%)
Language	Greek / English